

To call someone
a “life saver”
is usually an exaggeration.

For them, it’s an understatement.

On behalf of Long Island Community Hospital
Mark S. Mulholland, Chairman of the Board of Directors,
Richard T. Margulis,
President and CEO,
the entire medical staff
and the countless Long Islanders you’ve helped, we earnestly say this:
yours are truly courageous hearts!
Your community. Your hospital.

A Chief of Trauma who advocates and educates for the prevention of traumatic injury. A Director of Nursing for Critical Care & Cardiovascular Services who shares her heart with patients, colleagues and students alike. These two are not just the finest examples of medical professionals. They are beacons that remind us what the light of their humanity creates when cast upon our community: a place unlike any other that we are all proud to call home.

For these reasons and so many more, tonight we celebrate James A. Vosswinkel, MD and Mary Maliszewski, MS, BS, RN. And above that we say, “thank you” for inspiring the courageous hearts in us all.
